COVERS RICHEST GOLD AREA IN CALIFORNIA

Vol. 11, No. 91. The County Seat Paper NEVADA CITY, CALIFORNIA The Gold Center FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1937.

Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

The layman's point of view, the "little fella's slant" is something altogether alien to brain trusters, the highly trained economists, and the theorists. It does not involve calculus, or charts, and graphs, or, to any great extent percentages. The little chap's point of view is extremely practical as regards all governmental reforms, measures, and tax acts. For the little fellow hasn't a wide, deep cushion between himself and hard times. At least 95 per cent of United States business men operate on a very small margin of capital. They are usually within hailing distance of that condition, known in the old days as "root hog or die."

The "ring around the rosy" game that Washington officialdom plays, and in a lesser degree, that the California state government plays, viewed near at hand and judged by its results, the little fellows of the country are beginning to damn wholeheartedly. By artificial means, that is to say subsidies in one form or another, some millions of farmers have been temporarily benefited. The prices for farm produce, wheat, cotton, meat, wool, things that people must have to sustain life, have been jacked up. Factory workers throughout the country have formed unions, with governmental approval and help, and they have jacked up their wages. The factory hand had to get higher prices for manufacturing things because the things he ate and wore were costing more. Now the farmer finds he must pay high prices for his supplies, machinery, trucks and caterpillars, and he yelps for still higher prices for farm produce. The result is a game of "ring around the rosy."

In between, are all the little business men in the country, all the clerks, postoffice employes, stenographers, all the vast army of unorganized workers. While factory and farm workers together number around 17 million persons the rest of the population is ground between those two mill stones. The little fellow looking at these enormous forces which the Federal government has specially favored, giving them legal machinery with which to oppress the rest of the population, begins suspect that it belongs to the legion of forgotten men.

The President in his message to Congress the other day spoke kindly but vaguely of doing something nice to free the little business men of the country of the tax burden. As a matter of fact little businessmen do approve of much the New Deal has done. The old age security act and the employment act, it is generally freely acknowledged are steps in the right direction. But the plague of the tax gatherers is a fearful load for the little fellow to carry. Not the money especially, though that is an important item, but increased bookkeeping, the red tape, the endless carbon copies, the monthly, semi-annual or annual reports, these are things that harry the little fellow.

In California for instance the Federal government collects an income tax, a gas tax, and a social security tax. The latter is paid once a month. The state government collects the employment insurance tax, the sales tax, gas tax, and automobile tax. The county government collects real and personal property taxes, the city government ditto, plus various license fees for doing business. Most business men pay twelve different taxes a year to five or six different tax collectors. It would greatly simplify and reduce the cost of government if, in each county, there was one tax collecting agency to gather in all the taxes due county, state and federal governments. At one fell swoop an army of tax gatherers could be dismissed and the load carried by the little fellow by that much reduced. The tax gatherers would perforce find other means to earn their living, thus producing instead of tax collector's office the only one in all the land.

This of course is only the dream of a visionary. But it would be extremely easy for the state and federal governments acting together to eliminate 75 per cent of the cost of gathering taxes by enacting legislation which would make the county tax collector's the only one in all the land.

The little fellow also objects to carrying on the relief rolls able-bodied bums who never have delivered an honest day's work and never will. He objects to spending billions on relief when only 65 per cent of the money actually goes for relief while 35 per cent goes to pay the salaries of slick parasites who officiate as supervisors, super-supervisors and lord high directors, and another army which is hired but does not function, to see to it that these political flunkies and parasites go straight.

Fundamental Causes of Sino-Japanese War Discussed at Rotary

There were a large number of visiting Rotarians yesterday at the meeting of the local club in the National Hotel. Monroe Jang, an American Chinese of Marysville, was the guest speaker and gave a remarkably clear address on the Japanase-Chinese war. Members of the Rotary club enrolled in the Red Cross for the year. Dr. Walter Hawkins taking their membership dues.

Harvey Eich, treasurer of Yuba county, a friend of Yang brought him up from Marysville, and the large attendance of Rotarians from other clubs and visitors from Grass Valley and elsewhere can be attributed to the wide interest in the war in the Orient upon which Jang spoke. As a high school graduate of Marysville, Jang won a cash prize offered by the Bank of America for the best essay in California.

There will be no meeting of the Rotary club next deek due to the Thanksgiving holiday.

Mr. Jang said: "It was not so very long ago that Dr. Hu Shih, China's leading philosopher, at the Institute of Pacific Relations made this statement: 'We are determined to solve our own urgent problems, to put our own house in order, and if necessary to fight for our existence. This portentious statement made last year, became a reality with the Loukouchiao incident on July 7. China has indeed found it necessary to fight for her existence. These few words can sum up more thoroughly and irrefutably than any indictment of broken treaties and pacts the whys and wherefores of the conflict in China today.

"For the past four months or more, Chinese villages and cities have been destroyed, Chinese women and children have been murdered, Chinese universities bombed. There has been suicide squads and tortured prisoners; and the world, used as it is to horror, stands newly shocked, at this increasing list of atrocities. Seeking to bring China to her knees, the Japanese militarists have been savage in their destruction on China and China realizing that it is conflict or submission is fighting back with all her heart and with all the resources at her command.

"Let me first of all briefly summarize some of the events which have taken place ever since the Marco Polo bridge incident of July 7. For more than a month after that incident, hostilities were confined to the region north of the Yellow river, which Japan had long coveted.

"Then when the Japanese navy swung into action at Shanghai, the Chinese generals and political leaders met at Nanking and voted that China must now resist at whatever the cost. The Chinese government solemnly declared that China's territorial integrity and sovereignty wantonly violated in glaring violation of such peace instruments as the covenant of the League of Nations, the nine power treaty and the Paris peace pact, and that China was duty bound to defend her territory as well as the sanctity of these treaties.

"With that declaration the war got under way in earnest. Chinese war planes flew over the city, bombing the Japanese warships. Japenese planes and naval guns also swung into action and the fihgting spread over a thirty miles by land and water.

"The Chinese resisted fiercely and bravely. Far at odds because of their inferior equipments, the Chinese have made up for that with their courage. But recent reports from Shanghai have indicated that the Japanese with their most earth-shaking bombardments, divisions of her best troops, three fourts of her navy, artillery seige guns, and cavalry, has after over three months of fighting jenetrated into Tazang and has forced the withdrawal of the Chinese troops from the Shanghai area, and are now driving on to Soochow and Nanking. Soochow was suddenly destroyed the other day and Nanking has been bombarded now for weeks.

"Meanwhile in North China the Japanese were also gaining firmer control. After the Marco Polo bridge incident, Peiping was not long in going. Tientsin collapsed after a brief resistance. The 29th route army in that region were virtually licked before they started, however, for they were without defense and fortifications of any kind—a reward of China's faithful observance of demilitarizing agreements. As the Japanese troops continued to push to the southwest, the defending armies increased in numbers until now there are about 500,000 troops facing the Japanese along three fronts—west of Peiping on the railway to Suiyaun, south along the railway to Hankow and below Tientsin where Japanese were driving on Shangtung. The most stubborn fighting was in the Nankow pass, the historic gateway into Mongolia. For two weeks the Chinese hidden in the peaks, put up heroic defense against a merciless mechanized attack before they were finally driven out.

"But the section of China north of the Yellow river has long been written off the map as military untenable. China's military leaders do not entertain much hope of holding those provinces against the onslaught of the Japanese military machine. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is assured that the region along the Yellow river can be well defended. And so China, preparing for a long war shall not waste and consume her resources in those areas, which are deemed indefensible. At the present, it is the general concensus of opinion, that China will stake her chances along the great wide Yellow river where impenetrable defenses are now being put up. It is there that the decisive battles will take place.

"But let us look deeper into the question of the probable duration of Chinese military resistance. People have been used to thinking in terms of the Manchurian incident of 1931 and the Shanghai war of 1932 and wonder whether the present undeclared war, in spite of its magnitude will not end just as abruptly and just as peacefully. If so, they ask, why do anything about it. Those who entertain this uncertainty fail to take account of what has happened in China during the past two years. The Chinese people have been slow to move, but once aroused, they are determined to see it through. Six years of Japanese aggression has finally resulted in a united China and today the people are standing behind the government resistance as one man. They are not unaware of the grim realities of the situation, but they are facing it with a tragic sense of fate. They know that they have two alternatives: resistance or complete political and cultural domination by the Japanese.

"With all the odds against them, they have chosen to resist. So far the Japanese have made some notable advances on the Northern fronts with their mechanized units. It is not unlikely that within another month or two they will be able to gain con-

THREE GEESE CAUSE WILD GOOSE CHASE

Three large white geese that Alfred Haddy, residing at the end of Park evenue, was carefully fattening for the holiday season, apparently suspecting their fate, took to their wings yesterday shortly after noon. One bird named Santa Claus got as far as Broad street in front of the Alpha store where Ed Martine grabbed it. Santa Claus was full of fight but Martine summoning several helpers, eventually subdued it. The second bird, named Governor Bradley, got as far as the Plaza and then decided to walk the rest of the way. Charlie Giani captured this one. The third goose, named New Year Baby was unaccustomed to steering and flew through the big window of Miss Mamie Fenton's home at the corner of Park avenue and Nimrod, giving Miss Fenton a bad shock. The goose was somewhat damaged and the window pane was a total loss.

TEACHERS CLOSE YEARLY INSTITUTE

The Nevada County Teachers Institute adjourned last Tuesday after a very successful session. Wednesday members of the Nevada county teaching corps set out to view teaching methods in nearby cities. Auburn, SSacramento, Marysville, Colfax, Yuba City and Roseville were chosen for this purpose. This observation tour is a new idea in institute affairs and was proposed by Mrs. Ella Austin, Nevada County Superintendent of Schools.

Members of the Institute unanimously voted that the 1938 meeting should be held in Truckee.

Highlights of the Institute were talks by Dr. Noel Keys of the University of California, State Senator J. L. Seawell and several Nevada county eachers.

UNEMPLOYMENT CENSUS WILL END TOMORROW

Every citizen of Nevada City who receives mail this week received an unemployment blank form from Franklin D. Roosevelt. Eighty-five million of these cards have been mailed all over the United States by the government in an effort to take, for the first time, an actual count of the unemployed throughout the nation. Every blank contains fourteen questions pertaining to the experience, abilities and times of employment of the unemployed person. None of the answers to the questions will be made public except in mass statistics.

The government will use the information gathered by this unemployment census in an effort to help business re-employ the huge number of willing workers now idle throughout the country. The questionnaire should be filled out and mailed by tomorrow, November 20.

FIREMEN FIND PLENTY OF SMOKE, NO FIRE

Smoke issued from the roof of the house on Pine street, occupied by William Rowe and family, next door to the Pied Piper. The fire alarm was turned in and the fire department was on the spot promptly. Though there was smoke issuing from the attic no fire could be found. The fire engine returned to headquarters, but had hardly got there before summoned again. This time a square foot of shingles was ripped off and the mystery was explained. Once a chimney had protruded through the roof. In reroofing the building, however, it was decided apparently to give up the use of the stove in the room below, the chimney was taken out and the roof shingled over the old flue. But the hole in the ceiling remained and the Rowes, having moved in recently set a stove and ran the pipe into the attic above the ceiling. Presently the top of the house began to ooze smoke.

Miners Employed In Nevada County, 2,566

The survey of the mining industry within Nevada county, for the month reveals the resumption of work in three mines, the Fortuna, Arctic and Greystone. Valley Mines, Sunflower, Greenhorn Creek, Giant King and Peri-Haley have closed down for the time being.

The number of men employed is practically the same as recorded in October. There are 2,566 men now employed and the payroll amounts to $384,700 monthly.

The Idaho Maryland is exploring the ground below the 2,000 foot level, the depth of the shaft, with a winze and reports a very satisfactory showing.

With abundant rains and the assurance of a plentiful water supply resumption of work in several gravel mines is promised shortly.

DAISY BLUE MINE

Fifteen men are employed at the Daisy Blue mine on the Marks property northwest of Nevada City. The 10 stamp mill has been assembled and installed and started operating two shifts Monday on ore mined by leasors. James Kistle holds the lease, the men are working two shifts.

IDAHO-MARYLAND MINES, INC.

The Idaho-Maryland Mines company, located northeast of Grass Valley, have a payroll of 818 men employed in several mines and on the various ranches. There are 637 men in the Idaho-Maryland; 35 in the Bullion; 100 at Forbestown, Butte county, and 26 on the various ranches conducted by the big company on its surface holdings. There are thoroughbred horses, cattle and splendid fruit orchard, noted for its fine apples.

Two new 35 car garages one at the New Brunswick and one at the Idaho-Maryland have been completed for the employees cars. A new 625 foot winze sunk below the 2,000 foot level of the mine has proven values at depth. All previous work has been above the 2,000 foot level and consists of many miles of tunnels. Several months ago the Forbestown property in Butte county employed but 12 men. The company installed a large capacity mill last fall and has since put 100 men to work.

Financial Hocus-Pocus

(From the New York Times)

During the first four months of the current fiscal year the government of the United States has collected $215,000,000 in social security taxes. If anybody imagines that this money has been set aside under lock and key, in a special reserve fund which will accumulate interest over a period of years and enable the Government ultimately to pay the benefits which the Social Security Act requires, his faith is based upon a misconception of facts.

The $215,000,000 has all been spent, for a variety of purposes: perhaps to help build Grand Coulee Dam, perhaps to finance WPA projects in street-paving, perhaps to pay the salaries of officers in the navy—no one knows precisely, since the dollars that come into the Treasury are not so ear-marked that they can be identified when they go out again. As for the reserve fund which is supposed to supply the money needed in future years for the payment of benefits under the Social Security Act: it consists at present only of Government I. O. U.'s.

Certain conclusions are inescapable. One is the fact that what the government has actually done has been to invent a new kind of corporation tax and a new kind of personal income tax ,applied in the case of individuals even to the smallest incomes. Equally clear is the fact that this system is a constant beguiling temptation to governmental extravagance.

MINING

FORTUNA MINE

Twelve men are employed in the latest property to resume operations in the Nevada City district, the Fortuna or old Live Yankee south of Nevada City. J. M. Hoff and George Carter are supervising operations. Electricity was cut in last week and the shaft has been unwatered 100 feet with 417 feet to go to reach the bottom level. The mine has been idle about 40 years, a heavy flow of water proving too much for the pumps of that time.

OMEGA MINE

A new boarding house has just been completed at the Omega gravel mine near Washington. Plans of the company call for operations all winter. A 14 mile flume is being repaired and work has started on the new tailings dam.

A huge caterpillar is tearing up serpentine formation near the Washington road one mile northeast of the junction of the Tahoe-Ukiah and the dirt is being used to fill in and spread over the newly opened Omega mine road by a fleet of trucks. The work started Tuesday. E. F. Hillard, who recently completed a nine mile road for the Marsh Lumber company in the same district, moved his 90 horse power tractor on to the work and rapid progress is being made preparing the mine road for winter.

JIM MINE

Drifting and opening another stope continues at the Jim mine near Graniteville. A winze was sunk 85 feet and drifting was started to the east. Good values were found the whole distance in the winze which was on the vein. The company, which is from southern California will close as soon as there is danger of too much snow closing the road.

ARCTIC MINE

L. F. Utter took over the Arctic mine near Washington in the last three weeks. Jack Rondoni of Nevada City is in charge of ten men employed in reconditioning and starting development operations in the property.

LITTLE COLORADO PROPERTY

Charles Kistle brought suit several months ago to settle a lease to Clark Hunt on the Little Colorado property southeast of this city. The case was settled out of court Monday giving Kistle possession of his mining ground. The property has been tied up four years. Considerable development has been done with fully 65 tons of paying ore on the dump. A hoist and compressor are a portion of the equipment at the workings.

SPRING HILL MINE

Widening the station at the 1300 foot level is following some shaft development. Limited drifting is being done. Some new machinery has been installed in the mill to aid in better gold recovery. C. Cushwa is in charge and has 12 men employed. The property is a mile northeast of Grass Valley.

GREYSTONE PROPERTY

Two men are at the Greystone mine above the Spanish mine north of Washington. A cateurillar is working on the road. C. Twiford is in charge of operations.

RUBY MINE

The crew has been increased at the Ruby mine near Forest, Sierra county, until it again numbers 35 men. A program of sinking has been mapped for one of the rich ledges found in a several thousand foot long tunnel on the gravel channel. A new bunk house has just been completed. George Best owns and operates the Ruby mine.

LAVA CAP MINE

Work started in the last few days on the new 25 foot tailings dam on the Lava Cap mine property southeast of Nevada City. Superintendent Otto Schiffner estimates the dam will be big enough to hold mill tailings for several years.

DELHI MINE

Work was suspended at the Delhi mine about two weeks ago. Pumps were used over a considerable period of time to unwater the shaft and some work was done in repairing and development, besides construction of a bunk house at the mine site. The property is owned by Louis Nonneman and sister of San Francisco and has a record of rich production, heavy flows of water compelling cessation of work in the past.

LADY BUG PROPETY

H. Sharp representing New York interests, has five men employed at the Lady Bug mine northeast of Washington. Repair work is being done on the road and the property is being reconditioned.

trol of a good section of North China. But this is very far from saying that Chinese risestance will collapse. While China is far less adequately organized, and is suffering from the humiliating effects of constant air attacks and complete naval blockade the untapped resources of her teeming millions and her vast hinterland are factors which may prove to be much more important than has been realized. The Chinese may probably suffer many more reverses but no government which the people will support will dare to negotiate for peace on terms which the Japanese will dictate. And this means, that so far as military resources go, the war will be fought to the bitter end.

"This is the situation as it may look on paper. But the question of victory and defeat resolves itself into something deeper. The Japanese plan for the consummation of China seems to be proceeding smoothly. It has long been ready in paper perfection, and has moved step by step through the annexation of Korea, the annexation of Manchuria, the quiet assumption of controlling various strategic points in China during a long number of years, and now an open and bold announcement of a policy of expansion. The question to be asked today is no longer; Will Japan do what she threatens to do, namely, take control of North China, and extend her influence to cover the whole of China? It is a fact. The question that remains is how the Chinese will be affected in the long future.

"The final question of subjugation of freedom for China is still, I believe, not one of weapons nor of population nor of modern achievement. It is rather the question of which philosophy will endure the longer, the tranquil, humorous, cosmic philosophy of China or the desperate, narrow, humorless philosophy of Japan.

"What Japan has to conquer, therefore, if she really wants to conquer China, is this philosophy of the eternal worth of life, so that any adaptation is worth making for the sake of life. And she can conquer this philosophy this shrewd tenacious, gay determination to live, only by a superior philosophy. And this Japan has not. It will outwit her guns and her economics, and her education. It will wear out, I think, the last serious, efficient Japanese to be born into this world. For nothing is so wearing as people who persist in gaiety even when they are starving, who never realize when they are conquered, who wear upon their faces the smile of acquiscence but maintain themselves intact and immovable in the darkness of their own hearts and behind the doors of their own homes. And such are the Chinese, in peace or in war.

"What are the basic issues involved in the Sino-Japanese conflict? A prominent writer on international affairs, Y. T. Wu said: "It is a conflict not merely of nations but of principles. It is a conflict between the principles of peace and the principle of power. It is a conflict between those who value freedom and justice and those who are dreaming of foreign conquest and racial domination.

"But let me add that in contemporary terms, it is a struggle between democracy and fascism There are still many who failed to see this, and who compare the present Sino-Japanese war with the European war of 1914-18. Those who fought the latter war were made to believe that they were fighting for selfdefense or for an ideal. They were made to believe that all the wrongs were on the enemy's side and that, if the latter were subjugated, all would be well with the world. Some years after peace was restored, sensible people began to realize that all this was merely nonsense. They learned that both sides were guilty and that the war had accomplished nothing. Out of this disillusion, the peace movements of many countries were born.

"'In this mind, people are likely to approach the present Sino-Japanese conflict. Is this not 1914-18 all over again? And they may add—perhaps China has a better case but she certainly cannot be entirely in the right. But let us face the facts. Those who reason in this way fail to see that while no party can be absolutely in the right, yet we cannot escape the obligation of a relative judgment. From an absolutist point of view, one war may be as futile as another, but to say that a war of defense is in the same category as a war as aggression indicates nothing but moral confusion.

"There is another question which arises out of sympathy for the "have not" nations of which Japan is one. It is argued that she has a growing population with very limited resources which demands new territories for expansion. Because of this need, acts of aggressions have to be tolerated if nothing better could be done in the meantime. This is a matter which deserves much more attention than it has received. But we must realize that the problem cannot be solved by the law of the jungle. If the nations are allowed and encouraged to get what they want by tooth and claw, very soon a situation will be created in which civilization will become impossible. In the case of Japan, one can safetly say that if it were purely a matter of markets and raw materials and emigration, she already has obtained all she needs in the annexation of Korea and the conquest of Formosa and Manchuria. Obviously something else is plaguing the minds of the Japanese militarists.

"Ernest O. Hauser, writing in the New Republic, gave a pretty good answer, I think, as to what it is that is plaguing the minds of the Japanese militarists. He mentions that a three fold demon is driving Japan on to this madness. First he mentions the tremendous economic pressure inside of Japan. The peasants and the working class are daily finding it harder to make a living, to survive. A catastrophic overthrow was immeinentif something were not done and done quickly. So the army fanatics were given a free hand, which launched them upon this blind and terrible adventure in the hope that new markets in North China, a good supply of raw materials, and new industrial centers for her surplus labors, would help to relieve the situation at home Little did they realize however that it would cost them so much even at this early stage of the conflict, to gain what they have gained One can understand this severe economic crisis of Japan when we realize the swiftness with which she adopted the industrialism of the west which brought along all the problems and evils in a concentrated intensity.

"To solve these problems, therefore, requires desperate and drastic measures Capitalism in Japan, is supercapitalism; patriotism is super patriotism; poverty is superpoverty Between five and ten families of fabulous wealth who own a tremendous portion of all the wealth in the nation, practically control the government of Japan. Among the various evils which industralism has brought along to Japan is the rise of militarism and nationalism.

"The rise of militarism in Japan has brought on the army which had come to be a political third party in Japan. This party fills the gap between the fabulous rich families and the poverty stricken farmers. But this party in order to maintain its power, need to have its achievement and this is the tragic part of it, military rule demands military glory—and where else is there a better place for military glory than in unprepared China. What we may call a fanatical nationalism came along with this militarism. It is only by doping the people into a blind love for their country, shutting away the true facts from them, exploiting to the fullest the word patriotism, only then could her rulers carry out their predatory purposes without interference.

"There are other reasons for Japan's sudden attack on China. Quick action was necessary not only because of China's rapid unification under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, which has become the outstanding feature of present day Far Eastern history. Once China is unified and begins with her work of reconstruction, she reasoned, her activities and conquest on the mainland will be brought to an abrupt end. She must strike now or never; and she chose to strike.
